

Emma Doughty

Associate
Clinical Negligence

London, UK

Emma is an experienced litigation solicitor specialising in clinical negligence claims.

As a skilled advocate, she is also currently undertaking the Higher Rights of Audience (Civil Law) qualification to allow her to become a solicitor advocate.

During her career Emma has dealt with a wide variety of complex and high value claims.

These have included securing compensation for clients who have suffered as the result of delays in diagnosis of cancer and other illnesses, negligent surgeries and injuries during birth and during labour.

Emma has developed a specialism in claims concerning delays in diagnosis of cancer and more specifically in breast cancer.

She is currently running a large number of claims against Ian Paterson, the former breast surgeon from Birmingham who is being investigated for performing negligent and inappropriate surgeries.

Emma is considered to be one of the leading solicitors in the country in this litigation.

Expertise

- Surgical error
- Delayed diagnosis of cancer (including breast, bowel, skin and prostate)

Career history

- Since 2013 Slater and Gordon
- 2008 - 2012 Wilkin Chapman
- Bristol University
- Nottingham Law School